

Farrah Daly MD MBA is a neuropalliative specialist in Northern Virginia. Her private practice, EvenBeam Neuropalliative Care, LLC is focused on supporting people with advanced neurologic disease where they live by visiting them at home or in long term care. She completed internship at Yale New Haven Hospital in New Haven, CT and neurology residency at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville, VA. An experience with a family member's hospice care inspired her to pursue a fellowship in palliative medicine at Capital Hospice in Northern Virginia. She believes that the increasing attention and energy at the intersection of neurology and palliative medicine will benefit people living with neurologic disease as well as the people, both family and professionals, that participate in their care.
